This service is available at Tripler Army Medical Center for children six weeks to twelve years old. Although drop-ins are accepted on a space available basis, reservations are strongly recommended.

Early Childhood Education programs are comprised of two research-based programs, Operation Little Learners (OLL), which consists of Playmorning and Early Learning Readiness, and Parent Participation Preschool (PPP). OLL is for children ages 6 months to 5 years old, and PPP is for children ages 3 to 5.

Operation Hero is an after-school program in partnership with local elementary schools designed to address the unique challenges of being a military child. The program is for children in grades 2 to 6 and runs on a semester rotation.

1917

ASYMCA Hawai'i was established to support the U.S. military in the Territory of Hawai'i. Businessmen and U.S. military officials banded together to raise funds to purchase the original Royal Hawaiian Hotel building on Richards Street. The building was demolished in 1926 and rebuilt as the Armed Services YMCA, also known as the Army Navy YMCA.

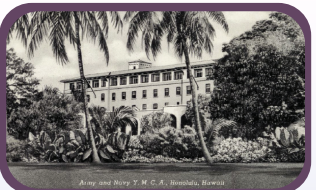

1941

The ASYMCA was a popular destination for servicemen from all branches of the military. On the night before the attack on Pearl Harbor, it hosted a lively band and dance contest. As WWII progressed, President Roosevelt tasked the YMCA to establish morale and recreation services for military personnel. ASYMCA joined forces with other groups and formed the USO.

1950

Five years after the end of WWII, ASYMCA Hawai'i concentrated its support on troops participating in the Korean War. It continued as a place of refuge and rejuvenation for military personnel, serving as a home away from home for many junior enlisted servicemembers. Excursions, game and movie nights, and all you can eat dinners were regular occurrences at the ASYMCA.

1975

By the mid-70s, an increasing number of junior enlisted personnel were married and had children. ASYMCA Hawai'i responded to the changing needs of the military by opening family centers and programs on military bases. In 1978, the ASYMCA Hawai'i building on Richards Street was added to the National Register of Historic Places.

1985

The 80s was a time to rebuild. The ASYMCA worked with the Department of Defense (DoD) and Department of Health and Human Services to develop and operate Military Family Resource Centers (MFRC) nationwide. MFRCs were adopted as an official part of the DoD in '83, and in '84, ASYMCA established MOUs with the DoD for continued support services in the U.S.

2000

ASYMCA Hawai'i opened branches on military bases in the late 80s and flourished through the 90s. With the turn of the century, it pivoted its focus to provide deployment support for military families with loved ones in the Middle East. Its historic building on Richards Street was purchased by the State of Hawai'i, and reopened as the Hawaii State Art Museum in 2002.

2017

Armed Services YMCA Hawai'i celebrates its 100th anniversary! Founded during WWI, steadfast through Pearl Harbor, WWII, Korea, Vietnam, Afghanistan, and Iraq, ASYMCA Hawai'i is dedicated to military members and their families who serve the nation during uncertain times at a high operational tempo.
