Living aloha is a journey rooted in compassion, understanding, and a deeper connection to the world around us. Step back into time when “sugar was King” and experience the real Hawai‘i. Hawaii’s Plantation Village is the perfect location for keiki, family, and all ages to explore a living history museum and botanical garden. A visit to this outdoor museum opens a door to a time of true hospitality and cultural sharing that sprung from Hawaii’s plantation life. Local guides will take us on a journey back to the early 1900s to experience more than 25 authentic plantation homes and structures, including houses of various ethnic groups and community buildings such as the plantation store, infirmary, bathhouse, and manager’s office.

Military family members of all ages welcome.

Thanks to our generous donors, this event will be a modest fee of $5 per person. Our donors are helping cover a portion of the normal ticket prices (range from $8 to $11 per person) and the full cost of the lunch.
